Sharing a video

"If I ... would you?" is one of the most powerful invitations you can make. For example:

"If I send you a link to a short video, would you watch it and let me know what you liked best about it?"

You can make that invitation in person, on the phone, by email or Facebook private message ... or you can do it by text message; and, guess what - it works!

When you want to invite a prospect or customer to watch one of the videos, rather than send them a link to Youtube, you can send them to JPVideos.tv.

The videos are numbered, so you can see that the Dr. Dubois video is #12, so you can send them 12.JPVideos.tv. They can watch Dr. Dubois and still see all the other videos below it.

Keep this document on your phone and copy/paste your chosen video link into a text to your friend.

Text to Set an Appointment

Of course, it's best of all to have them watch the video with you right alongside them. So, you may prefer to use texting to set an appointment.

Eric Worre (GoPro) teaches you to do that here, and explains why texting is best: <https://youtu.be/ajPcvtIbhZc>
